CHINA'S NATIONAL DAY

Sun Yat Sen's
Birthday

OFFICIAL OBSERVANCE

Yesterday was the 70th anniversary of Dr. Sun Yat-sen's birth, and Chinese of the Kuomintang Party (which Dr. Sun founded) in China, and throughout the world paid homage to a man, who spent practically his whole life working for the success of the revolution, which made China a Republic.

The chief observance was held at Nanking, the capital of the "Nationalist" Government, where the remains of the late Dr. Sun Yat-sen now lie in the vault in the state mausoleum on the slopes of the Purple Mountain.

It is interesting to note that Dr. Sun Yat-sen was intimately connected with Hong Kong, for it was here that he received part of his education as a medical student of the Hong Kong School of Medicine, Hong Kong University, graduating on July 16, 1892.

PICTURESQUE MANNEQUIN PARADE

Ancient And Modern Contrasts

Gorgeous gowns and brilliant display of modern and ancient Chinese dresses, which was the first of its kind at the Mannequin Parade held in the ballroom on the roof of Gloucester Building yesterday afternoon, drew large crowds amongst whom were Lady Caldecott, Mrs. Morris, Mrs. Hoover, Miss Lam, Mrs. A. W. Hayward, Mr. Noble (Assistant Commissioner of Canadian Trade), Mr. Abbot (Assistant Crown Solicitor) and many others well-known in society.

The European dresses were supplied by Maizee's with the assistance of Mrs. Fredericks, Mrs. Plate, Miss Middleton Smith, Mrs. Noble, Mrs. Nicholson, Miss Haynes, and Miss King as models.

The most outstanding European dresses were the evening gowns, Mrs. Fredericks wore a charming sapphire blue formal studded with pearls; Mrs. Nicholson in a black net with sequins; Mrs. Noble in a platinum dress with a white manable evening cape and Mrs. Plate in striking black velvet with pearls and a velvet evening cape with a white ostrich plume.

IMPORTANT SOCIAL SERVICE

WORK MUST EXPAND-BUT MONEY IS NEEDED

Street Sleepers' Shelter Society

At the third annual general meeting of the Street Sleepers' Shelter Society held in St. John's Cathedral yesterday afternoon, Mr. R. Ashton Hill, acting Chairman of the Society, stated that even if they had ten shelters they would not be meeting the need. They had a balance of only $2,000 and did not feel justified at the moment in making any attempt to increase the number of shelters from three to four. He would like, therefore, whilst thanking those who had subscribed to the work in the past, to ask for their continued and increased support. The work needed expanding, he said, and they could not expand unless they had the money.

Prior to the meeting an "At Home" was held for volunteer helpers of the Society.

Supporting Mr. Ashton Hill at the meeting were the Hon. Dr. R. H. Kotevall, Miss R. Mow Fung (Hon. Secretary), Miss D. Lee (Assistant Hon. Secretary), Mr. Andrew Cneung (Hon. Treasurer), Mr. Tang Shiu Kin, Miss M. Blanchett and Mr. J. C. M. Grenham.

The minutes of the last annual general meeting were read by Miss Mow Fung and were confirmed.

CHAIRMAN'S SPEECH

Addressing the meeting, the Chairman said:—

At our last committee meeting I agreed to take the chair and only later realised to my horror that our chairman, Sir Henry Pollock would not be returning to Hong Kong until after this meeting.

This gives me a chance to say how much this society owes to Sir Henry's interest in its work. From the very first he took his turn week by week as a volunteer worker at St. Peter's shelter and during the last two years the work which he has done for the society has been invaluable. The volunteers are the backbone of this society and it is a great encouragement to the committee to have as chairman one who has taken his own turn of duty at the shelters and who thoroughly understands the work.

You will see from the report that during last winter, we were able to maintain the work at St. Peter's, to open a large shelter at Fo Yan St. and to open a shelter at Yau-mat for the first time. In connection with the shelter at Kowloon, I should like to place on record our thanks to Mr. Wong Yu Tung for

BROADCASTING IN THE FAR EAST

Miss A. C. Duncan's
Talk Over ZBW

A feature of yesterday's radio programme over Station ZBW was a talk by Miss A. Constance Duncan, Secretary of the Bureau of Social and International Affairs, Melbourne, and representative of the Australian Broadcasting Commission.

The subject of her talk was "Broadcasting in the Far East," in which this much-travelled lady described her radio experience in the Far East.

MAKING THE WORLD A NEIGHBOURHOOD

Miss Duncan said, "We often talk of Science making the world a neighbourhood, but I have been experiencing this fact during this trip which took me first from Melbourne, Australia, to the conference of the Institute of Pacific Relations in the Yosemite Valley, California. Down in this glacier-cut valley hemmed under by perpendicular walls three-quarters of a mile high, 150 delegates from 11 Pacific countries met in August to discuss some of the fundamental problems of this area. Yosemite seemed far removed from the outside world against which nature had erected such barriers of stone. These appeared invulnerable to the traveller of old but non-existent to the present-day radio engineer who set up his studio in the Ahwahnee Hotel and invited representatives from different countries to discuss this problem—not before the small conference group in the Valley, but before the great American public."

Miss Duncan went on to say how she travelled across the Pacific to Japan, only to find her voice could make the return journey in a split

A sensation was caused among local seafarers yesterday following the arrest of a European officer, understood from a reliable source to be Mr. James Johnston, aboard a river steamer in connection with an alleged offence under the Opium Ordinance.

It was learned that the European concerned was taken into custody by Revenue Department officers on information received in the early hours of yesterday morning.

When a "Daily Press" representative made enquiries, officials

LONDON FASHIONS Colour Contrasts And Harmonies

Last season boldly contrasted colours were the outstanding feature of all sports clothes. This season the colours are matched and harmonized rather than contrasted. Tweed skirts have sweaters, cardigans, and scarves knitted in wools dyed to match. Brown and copper are harmonized with soft gold and amber, grey complements grey, and the new wine shades are worn with soft cyclamens and dull pinks. Purple or smoky blue goes with hyacinth and lavender, and a deep greyish green can be worn with a somewhat lighter shade.

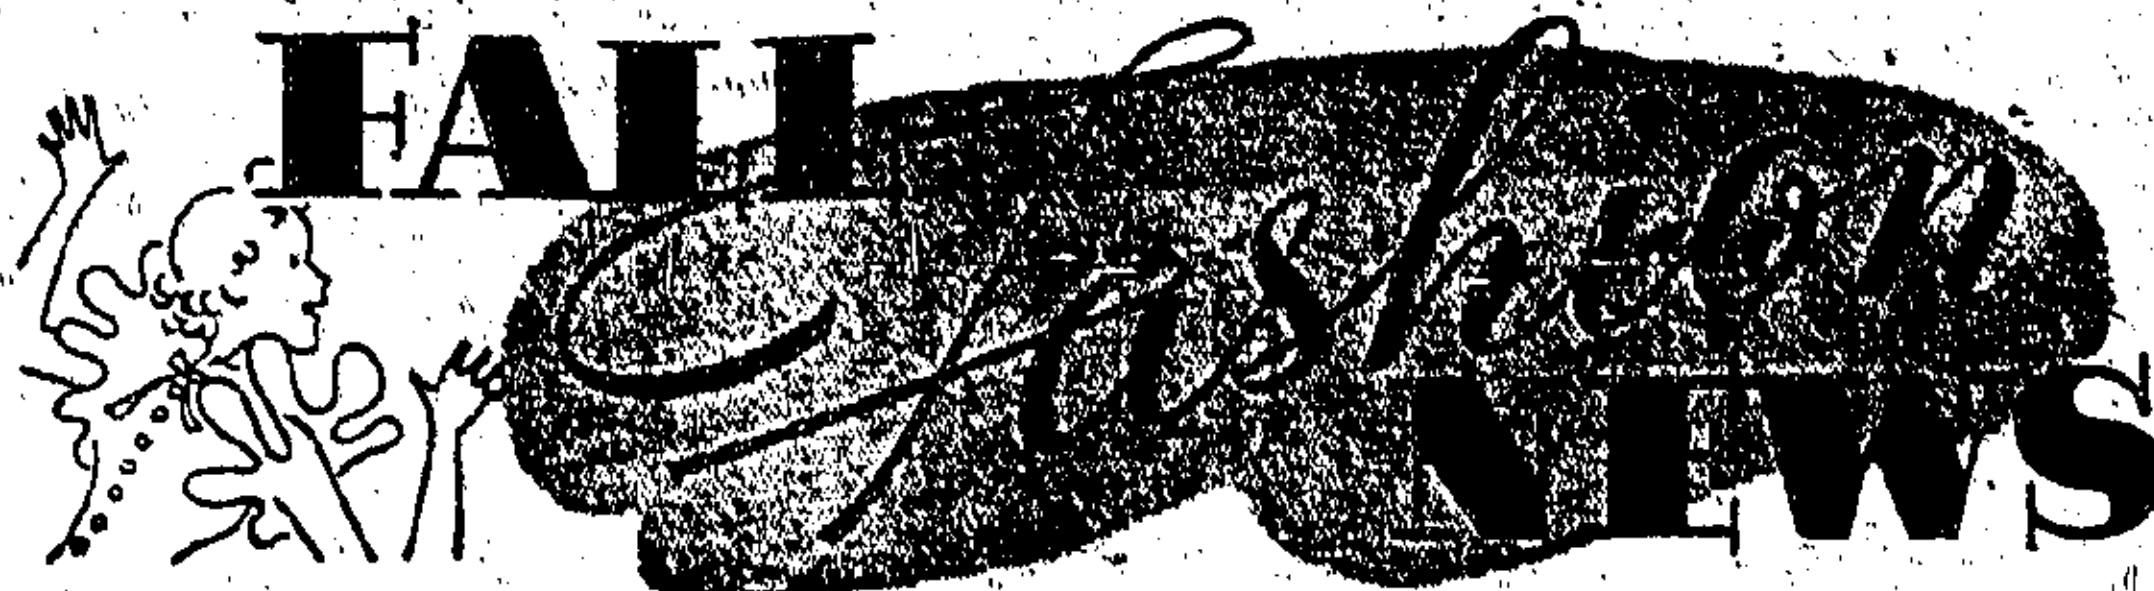

Broadcloth is the favourite material for town coats and suits, which are all heavily trimmed with Persian lamb. Their sombre appearance seems to demand a splash of colour, and here it is bright and varied. With a black coat colour may be given by a dress in a vivid shade of purple blue or coral red. Under a brown coat gold, flame, or "poison-green" is effective. When a bright-coloured frock is worn all the accessories should be black or brown to match the coat. Under fur coats grape shades and smoky blue look best with grey, royal blue, copper, and a new raspberry red with black and brown.

A more popular fashion is the matching coat and dress, the latter forming a background for a wide choice of coloured accessories. A cape of black velvet is shaped to a high point on one side, where it is crowned with a wide twist of bright green velvet. It is worn with coat and dress of dead black with suede belt in the same vivid green. Into the neckline of a coat of dark brown broadcloth is knotted a scarf of royal-blue velvet which matches the velvet of the small off-the-face halo.

A suit of very dark green has a hat of dark green felt. The blouse, handbag, and gloves are in a pinky shade of rust. Little caps and toques of felt and velvet are often trimmed with two or even three bright colours, such as red with green and magenta with blue, and wine, pistache green, and Chinese blue together. Tiny ostrich tips or twists of velvet or georgette may provide the only colour for an all-black ensemble. Royal and purplish blues give colour to plain black dresses. Other good shades are lime green, Chinese yellow, and geranium red. They are used in narrow pipings of velvet, handkerchief scarves, or of flowers tucked into the waistbelt. A dinner dress of black velvet has a band at the neck red and half green, a note which is repeated at the waist and in the lining of the wide open sleeves. There is a new metal mesh which makes tailored belts and bracelets, fastened with a brightly coloured jewelled buckle.

Tamara Krugliak, representative for Siberian Furriers Store, Shanghai, is on a business trip here for a short period.

Coat Frocks Of The Evening Take Straight Back Line

An evening outline that has a sporting air is attractive on account of its extreme simplicity, a characteristic of Molyneux' mood when designing mid-season clothes. This simplicity is exacting, not only in cut and line, but proportion, and grips the figure. Sportswomen will like it because it does not introduce fussy details.

A black net overskirt shaped round the hipline floats away from either side front into a full hemline. It goes over emerald green and black satin foundations, and these skim the figure to instep length. A couple of rose-pink peonies achieve a charming silhouette, to one side of the black net overskirt.

Floats occur again in another treatment which is entirely different, an idea carrying a long scarf contrasting peach-beige on to a slender black crepe evening gown. This scarf starts by being twisted round the nape of a necklace decollete and drops into straight panels from before each shoulder to the ground. These panels are a graceful asset and can be wielded in various ways according to the individual.

Graceful, too, is the long Dalmatian float of black lace falling from nape over the open back decollete of another black gown.

Gowns with coatfrock allure are lath-like in effect with button and button-hole fastenings, running in length down centre or side front. These fastenings stop short of hemlines to leave an opening for freedom of movement. In one instance they only appear on the corsage of an old gold cloy alme model, which is given an old gold taffeta waistbelt swathed to the figure and ending in a giant "chou" at one side. Taffeta gloves conform.

Waistbelts are the exception on this new outline, that emphasizes straight backs extending into the merest trains. Corsages are classic in the coatfrock sense, that is to say with turn down collars and little revers, but they are sleeveless and have an open split running down the back from nape to waistline.

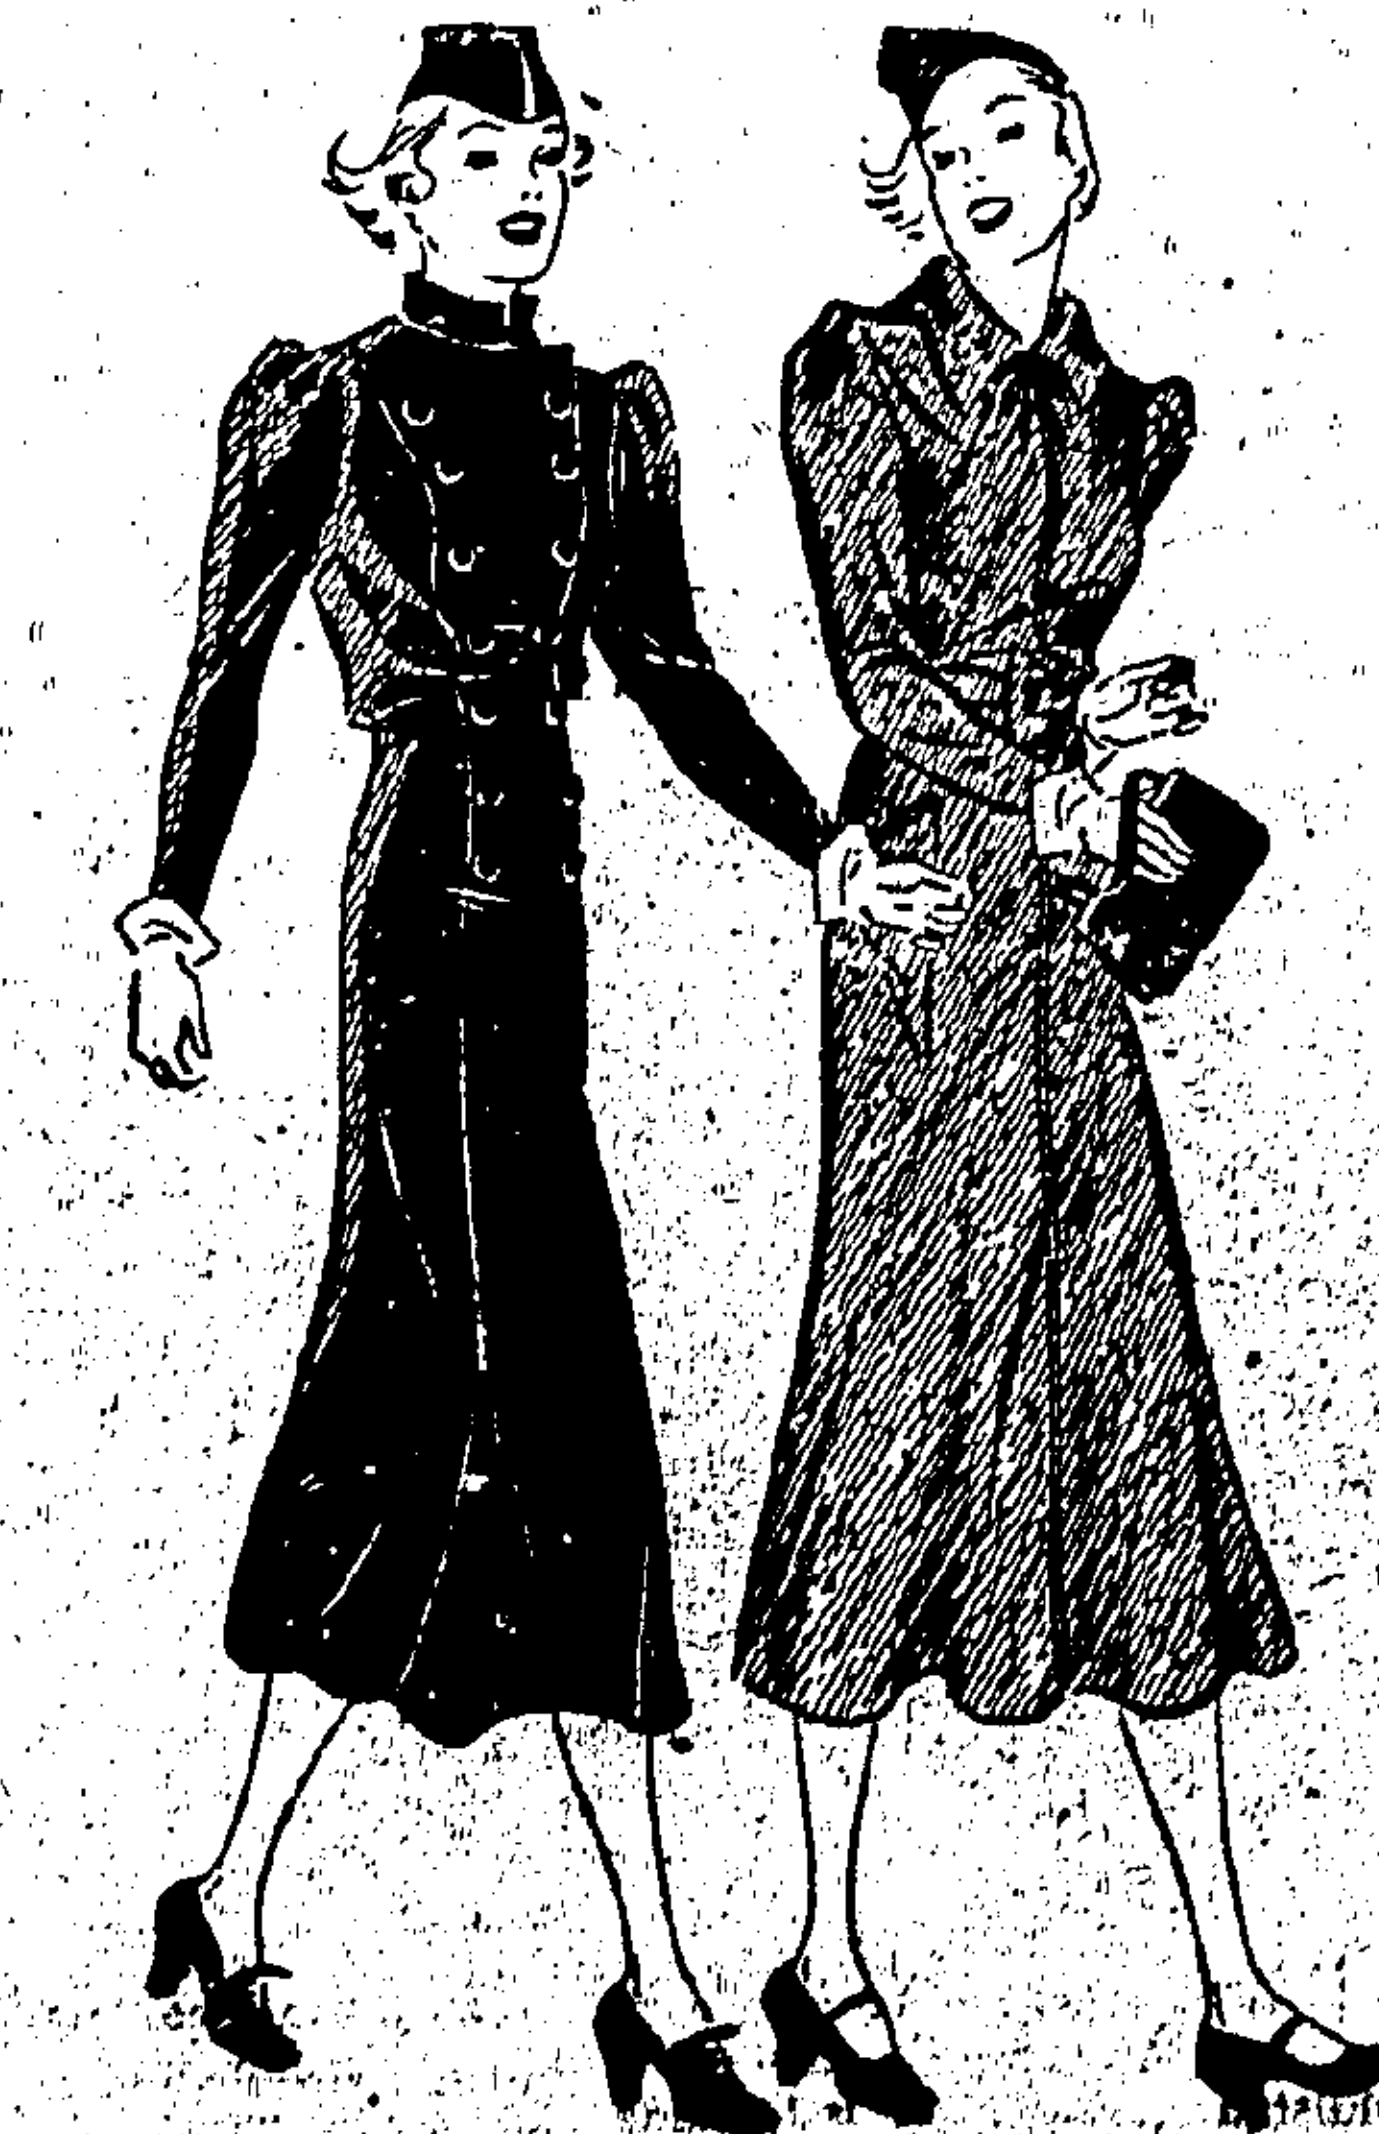

Variations on this outline include a jacket gown to the front of a slender black velvet gown that hangs straight at the back. Another style is the double-breasted sleeves coat, which ends above the knees over a ground length skirt. The model charms in bottle green velvet with a mat chamomile leather surface. A brighter green cord and tassels is strung, military-wise, beneath the high front neckline. There is a ground length cape of velvet to match.

ACCESSORIES AND GLAMOUR STYLES

Glamour—accentuated by jewels, orchids and veils—is to be the keynote of forthcoming fashions in New York.

Tall, conical black hats or little flat fur ones worn back from the hairline, sometimes have no trimming except a dazzling gem, usually a diamond, on the front.

For the woman who can afford only one good jewel, a clip brooch is advocated as the most useful piece. It can be worn with tweeds, afternoon gowns or evening wraps.

High front necklines shaping into short revers from high backs do not occur all the time for this new wrap-to coatfrock outline with centre or side front button and button-hole fastenings. Decolletages may be squared in front and dip wide open at the back. This idea occurs for a dinner gown of honey coloured lame, which looks exceedingly smart completed by a form fitted jacket with rolling basque. The jacket is of stiff Lyons velvet. A little toque perches down towards the right.

Taffeta is worked up in a new movement for this old gold tone which takes the punch out of brilliant colours.

FLOWERS IN THE HOUSE

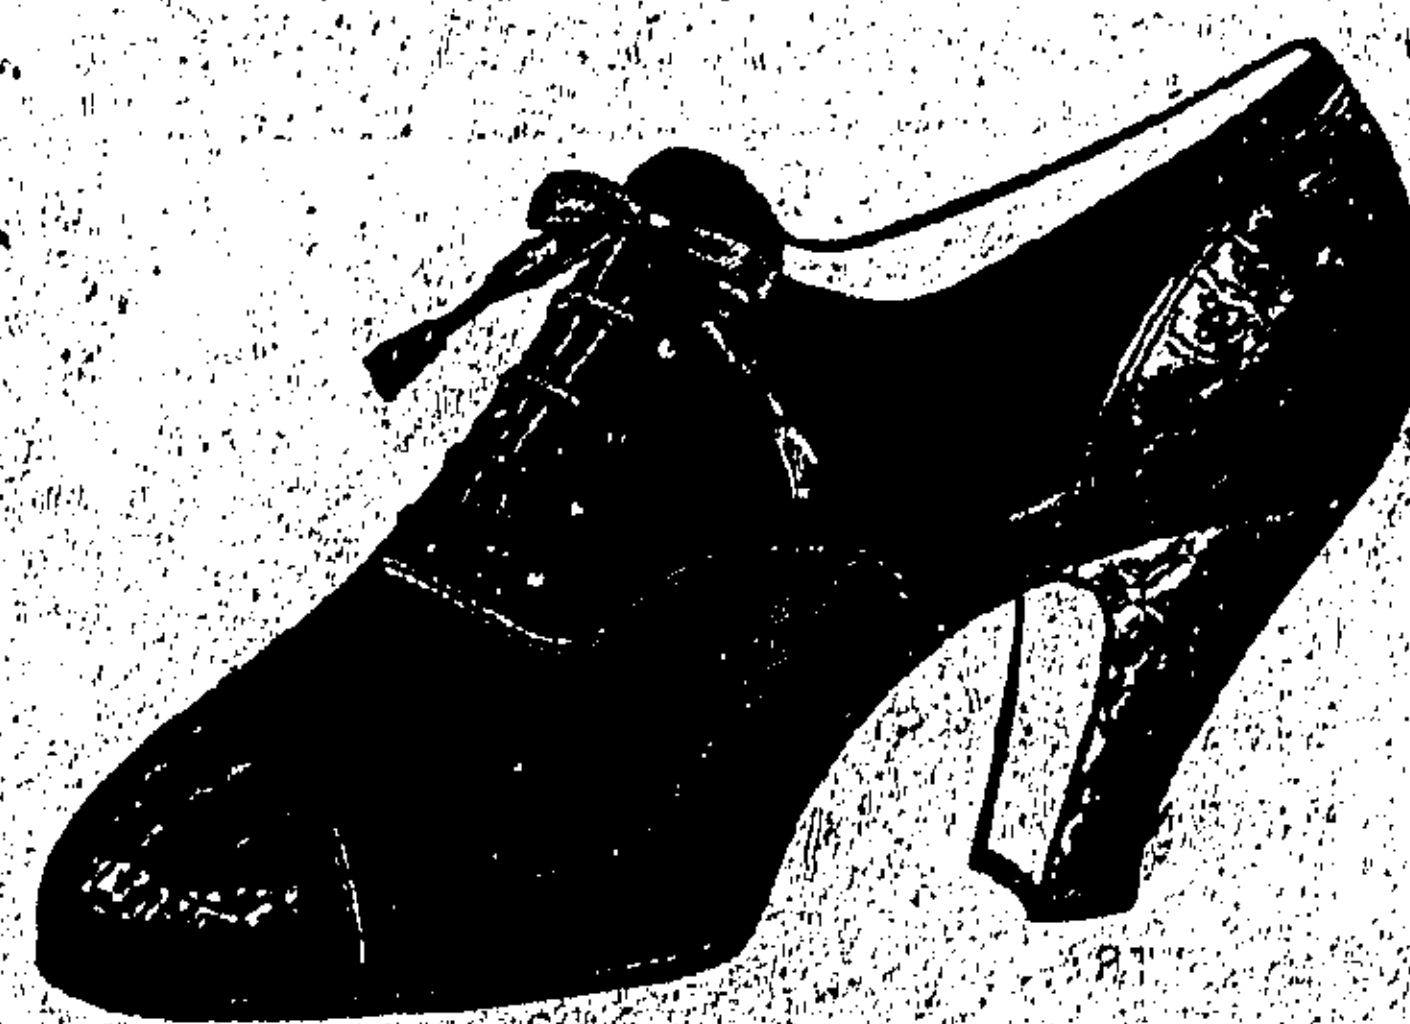

Their Position

In arranging flowers, especially at this time of the year position is a matter of importance. Afternoon interiors are darker and light seems intensified in the windows, so one must devote some thought to which flowers will let light through their petals and which need to have the light on but not behind them. For a table directly in the window single dahlias in clear, true colours make an excellent choice. Michaelmas daisies, on the contrary, lose their colour with light behind them, and look grey and dull, but place them where the light falls sideways on them and their lovely mauves and pinks immediately leap to life.

Anemones, in their royal reds and purples and with the spreading designs of their stems, look particularly well against a plain, neutral-tinted wall. Autumn-tinted leaves should stand fairly high against the wall. It is an interesting and repaying study to discover the position which suits each type of flower and shows it to the best advantage.

WHITE NEEDLES

White knitting needles greatly help matters when working a complicated pattern in artificial light with a dark shade of wool. Stocking needles are now to be obtained in white, and these have the further advantage over the old steel ones that they do not cause rheumatism in the hands of those who have that tendency. The steel is covered by a material which does not conduct the heat from the hands. They are more expensive than the ordinary needles, but are strong and well worth the price, a shilling the set. The same covered needles are made in the larger sizes, and they do not easily bend or break.

PARIS FASHIONS

Evening Dresses And Capes

There is now a fancy for wearing woollen materials in the evening. At a recent first night there were black woollen tweed coats lined with coloured velvet, and broad-cloth jackets lined with coloured satin. Many of the dresses were also of wool—jersey or crepe. They are cut high to the neck and the sleeves are long or short; a splash of colour appears in the cord and tassel belt of gold, green, red, or purple or in flowers on the bodice. On the head feathers are worn in the evening.

The cut of an evening dress may be slender to excess. Along slim woollen evening dress, slit at the hem, fits tightly from neck to foot. A slate-blue satin dress with a band of gold and puce embroidery about the hem and puffed sleeves is as full as in the time of the Empress Josephine; the hem of the skirt escapes the floor. The full tunic dress, which shows slim underskirt, has a kind of stiff Persian dignity. The sheathlike Princess robe, reaching to the feet, with a loose train from about the height of the knees behind, seems late Edwardian, especially with a low-cut neck-line, short sleeves, bracelets of coloured stones set in gold, and a diadem of jewels. Metal tissues and coloured velvets make evening turbans suitable for the elderly.

There are no little evening wraps now—no scarves, shawls, or wispy bits of tulle; high-necked dresses make them unnecessary. There are little jackets of lamé, brocade, velvet, satin, and fur, cut with precision, shaped to the waist and with tailored collars. The basque, short, long, full, or closely fitting, is full behind. Capes, reaching lower than the waist behind, of silver fox, ermine, or mink, worked into bands, are light things to wear. The furrier has prevailed against the stiffest and least pliable of skins; so soft and light are now wild horse and pony, Astrakhan and broadtail continue. Seal skin, baby bear, nutria, and skunk have returned. Capes are cut to fall well below the hips and to close at the throat; it slips on easily over a tailored dress or coat and skirt; at the neck may be a bright silk scarf. The short, loose-fitting fur jacket is less frequent; but the three-quarter coat with flared hem and the long coat with a fitted waist are liked, and when made of costly furs such as mink, sable, or ermine, long straight coats are not out of date.

Then the vogue of the shorter fitting coats and tunics still somewhat hampered by the number of undergarments then worn, and also superfluity of fabric in the actual garment began.

Only in recent years has the sectional cut-and-fitted process in fur been understood. Even in cloth, it was only the master-hand that achieved slimmest above and the full swinging line in the skirt part. This is now managed in all models.

The somewhat severe long coat in taffeta or velvet for day or night is reminiscent of Edwardian elegance, but its former primness has vanished. The same applies to the many delightful little coats of hip-length in tweed or wool. Sometimes a model is so plain that it depends on its buttons for distinction. Often it is collarless and limp. In direct contrast is the model squared of shoulder and braided in military mode.

A longer jacket of broadcloth is rounded off from a normal waist and hip-line, and bordered with narrow astrakhan.

FLARE AND SWING

With the shorter coats, skirts are permitted to flare and swing. They may be tight and narrow, almost tube-like, with all fullness taken to the front or to the back, according to the style selected.

One fur coat of fashion may show the swinging silhouette somewhat after the raglan swagger idea.

COATS TAKE NEW LINES

Day And Evening Choice

(By The Hon. Mrs. C. W. Forester)

Fashion has not stepped much further back than the last century in reviving coat silhouettes. Many coat lines of the past are inclined to a certain clumsiness opposed to modern standards. The dolman of the early and middle part of the Victorian era was not at all perfect, but it did possess quaint dignity and grace. This applies also to the pelisse and pelonaise of a later date.

Afterwards many variations of the tunic and the sac-like coats and cut-away jackets came. The latter, again fur-trimmed, was a favoured silhouette in the "nineties."

As the Edwardian era developed, a more graceful jacket and also fur coats of full length and more shapely style made their appearance.

Then the vogue of the shorter fitting coats and tunics still somewhat hampered by the number of undergarments then worn, and also superfluity of fabric in the actual garment began.

Only in recent years has the sectional cut-and-fitted process in fur been understood. Even in cloth, it was only the master-hand that achieved slimmest above and the full swinging line in the skirt part. This is now managed in all models.

NEW SHADES FOR GLOVES

The longevity of the fanciful glove is a surprise. Velvet in black and rich autumnal shades has attained a new life. Suede is no longer restricted to beige and grey. The latest craze is for a pale burgundy, especially for suede, and there are other, more "pink" than brown, tones. Dark red, deep purple and bottle green are much favoured.

The smart morning glove is practical and sporting in character. White, yellow, or a natural shade in hogskin is stitched with a darker tone. Sometimes a thick military kid can be mixed in with a brighter tone as a gauntlet glove, for tailor suits.

Washing chamoles, in white and yellow, is worn as much as ever for country or with tweeds.

For the afternoon range, plain or decorative, the choice is extensive. There are, however, always a few exclusive dressers who cling to their plain, but charmingly cut, pale sueded and kids. But even there the decorative element is creeping in by new ways of embellishing the gauntlet.

Many of the up-the-length in pale sueded fasten with two or three large pearl buttons and wrinkle in rich soft folds.

THE HIGHER NECKLINE GROWS IN FAVOUR

Women have worn the comfortable V neckline for a very long period, and will not forsake it easily, but the less open day-time neckline is smart for tailored shirts and winter sweaters.

The old polo collar now stands up only about one inch, then turns over with a contrasting colour and stitch. This is a pretty finish to the round throat of a young girl. The older woman should add a drape or scarf. If she leaves the scarf effect may be helpful. Frenchwomen are placing gay little scarves of all kinds—wool, velvet, and silk—inside their dark tailored coats and fur wraps.

Where the neckline terminates at the base of the throat of little wool frocks a jabot is made of the same wool fabric, and into this a touch of cream lace or coloured embroidery is introduced. If this idea is developed our dresser afternoon silk and velvet frocks may introduce lace edges and jabots.

The over-draped "choking" neck finish is, doomed, both by day and night. Day-time throats must be free, though taking a more upward trend.

WORLD PROSPERITY AHEAD

Sir R. Kindersley's Forecast

DEVALUED FRANC AS FIRST STEP

Sir Robert Kindersley, President of the National Savings Movement, speaking at North Western Regional Savings Conference at Southport recently, declared that "we can look forward to a period of world prosperity which will surprise the most optimistic."

Sir Robert is a director of the Bank of England and was the British representative on the Dawes Committee in 1924.

He was referring to the new situation created by the devaluation of the franc and of other gold currencies. "I believe," he said, "that this recent step in devaluation is fraught with the utmost significance for the world."

"Before it occurred, those of us who were watching the international horizon despaired of loosening the knot of quotas, exchange restrictions and the like; but by the action of France—for which M. Blum, who has shown great courage, deserved the thanks of the world—the pull of this knot has been relieved, and this will enable the world to untie it, if leaders are patient and careful, and have enough vision."

GRADUAL EXPANSION

"In my view, the happenings of the past two weeks are a prologue to a gradual but ultimately immense expansion of world trade, that means increase of wealth and prosperity."

"As guardian and champion of democracy, Britain has the duty of setting an example to the world by taking whatever measures she reasonably can to see that wealth and prosperity bring in their train contentment and happiness."

"This can only be accomplished by seeing that the distribution of this prosperity is just and fair. Without fair distribution, prosperity will be short lived; but with fair distribution and sane increase of the standard of living we can look forward to a period of world prosperity which will surprise the most optimistic."

"This leads me to a consideration of the part which our National Savings movement as an organisation has to play. The necessity for new capital will be insistent, and the mass of small investors will have to find a large part of it."

ITALO-GERMAN ENTENTE

Anti-Bolshevism

APPEALS TO GREAT BRITAIN

The reported results of the Italo-German talks were the principal topic of discussion recently, states the "Times." So far as Great Britain is immediately concerned, they may be summed up in the following formulation heard in National-Socialist quarters: the visit of Count Ciano was a demonstration against no country except Bolshevist Russia, but it was unquestionably a demonstration addressed to other countries which have not yet shared in the Italo-German outlook, notably Great Britain.

In such newspapers as the "Frankfurter Zeitung" and the "Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung," the direct aim—on Italy's behalf—is plainly stated. It is that Great Britain should now face what are claimed to be the facts and follow Germany's example in recognizing the Italian Empire of Ethiopia. The "Frankfurter Zeitung" recalls that Herr Hitler has always had a high opinion of the British position in the world, and says that even though, for whatever reason, his repeated appeals have not gained the necessary response in Great Britain, the importance attached by National-Socialist Germany to good relations with that country has not diminished.

Consequently, it is argued, there can be nothing dangerous to Great Britain in Italian policy. Otherwise the far-reaching recognition of the parallel political interests of Italy and Germany would not have been reached; it would have broken down at this point. This is held to prove that the Abyssinian War was not the beginning of a long phase of Italian adventure that might threaten British interests. Italy, it is declared, is quite ready to reach an understanding with Great Britain, but she cannot renounce the recognition of her acquisition in Ethiopia.

BRITISH REARMAMENT

The "D.A.Z." goes farther and calmly suggests that Great Britain, reassured by the Italo-German denial of expansionist aims, should check her rearmament, "which, in its extent, pace, and manner is not exactly intended as a European soothing pill."

In connexion with the repudiation of adventures and colonial expansionist plans, emphasis is laid on the statement in the "communiqué" that Italy and Germany have no other wish than that Spain shall as soon as possible resume "with absolute national and colonial integrity her due place in the community of nations." This is universally defined as disposing of all rumours of designs on the Balearic Islands or other Spanish possessions. Opinions seem to differ on its possible application to a Bolshevist Catalonia. Newspaper comments hint that the establishment of a "Bolshevist refuge" on the Iberian peninsula would not be regarded as a tolerable solution by the two Powers. In certain well-informed quarters, however, it is suggested that Germany at any rate has no interest in direct embroilment.

From the plain hints to Great Britain the commentators proceed to an interpretation of the Western Pact clause of the Italo-German "communiqué." What the two Powers want, it is explained, now that the Belgian declaration has simplified matters so nicely, is a straightforward Franco-German pact renouncing war, guaranteed along the old Locarno lines by Great Britain and Italy.

FOUR-POWER PACT

From this it is a short step to Signor Mussolini's Four-Power Pact, which would provide a solid foundation for a reformed League of Nations. It has been shown, says the "Frankfurter Zeitung," that three Powers—Great Britain, France, and Germany—are not enough to hold up the vault of peace in Europe; Italy must be added. At the same time, it has been made clear that a fifth pillar in the shape of Soviet Russia does not come into question; the Italian Government have shown that they look upon the Franco-Russian agreement in no different light from Germany.

The further Italian identification with the German anti-Bolshevist policy is regarded here as of more importance than some other features of the "communiqué," which only confirm virtually established facts. It is held that one of the immediate wishes in mind in arranging the joint demonstration, Germany, it is claimed, seized the occasion for more general reasons. Both countries claim to have been driven together by their inability to make headway with the Western Powers, especially Great Britain, but the German need was at the moment not so great as the Italian. Germany, nevertheless, welcomes any opportunity of demonstrating the spread of her influence, and a concerted action of a nation to save European civilization from Bolshevism.

KING LEAVES FOR PORTLAND

London Nov. 11.

The King was present to-night at the annual British Legion festival of remembrance at Albert Hall, which was crowded with ex-servicemen.

Shortly after leaving Albert Hall, His Majesty travelled by rail to Portland. He will sleep in the Royal Coach in a siding in preparation for the visit to the fleet which will extend over two days. After a reception by the Commander-in-Chief, Home Fleet and an inspection of the guards of honour, the King will embark on a barge.

The ships to be inspected tomorrow are: "Nelson," "Orion," "Courageous," "Royal Oak," "Calio," "Royal Sovereign," "Leander," "Nepos," and "Guardian." The Anti-submarine school will also be visited. After a dinner party on the Royal Yacht "Victoria and Albert," the King will visit the "Courageous" for a ratings' concert.—British Wireless.

APPEAL FOR MORE TERRITORIALS

It is confidently anticipated that the innovation of the Law Land Company and Law Land Building Department in holding a smoking concert recently, at Breitenbach House, Lancaster-place, Strand, will result in many members of their staffs joining the Territorial Army.

Sir Sidney Herbert, M.P., said that the Territorial Army was badly in need of men to fill the depleted ranks. They knew what was going on all over the world, and this country had been forced to look to her defences. He was not asking them to support anything in the nature of an aggressive war. They were not out for that, and no political party in the country would support such a proceeding. But they must defend the Empire.

Colonel Bryce-Jones, Secretary of the County of London Territorial Army, said that the Queen's Westminster and Civil Service Rifles wanted a Law Land platoon of 80 men, and he hoped that at least that number would join.

ing the joint demonstration, Germany, it is claimed, seized the occasion for more general reasons. Both countries claim to have been driven together by their inability to make headway with the Western Powers, especially Great Britain, but the German need was at the moment not so great as the Italian. Germany, nevertheless, welcomes any opportunity of demonstrating the spread of her influence, and a concerted action of a nation to save European civilization from Bolshevism.

"WHITE FANG"

Replete with the romance of the far North and filled with the drama of the lawless frontier, "White Fang," closes to-day at the King's Theatre, with Michael Whalen and Jean Muir heading an exceptional cast.

"White Fang" weaves a thrilling story of gold and greed, love and danger. Intermingled with the narrative is the biography of Lightning, the mighty son of Buck, the dog-star of "Call of the Wild," and she-wolf.

Whalen, an adventurer down on his luck, is persuaded by Thomas Beck, a newcomer to the North, to guide him on a long trek into the interior in search of a gold mine bequeathed to Beck and his sister.

Whalen acquiesces and the long, nerve-wrecking trip over the ice and snow—their adventures—are well depicted.

David Butler directed "White Fang," in which Charles Winnerger the original radio "Cap'n Henry" is also featured. The screen play was written by Gene Fowler, Halling and S. G. Duncan. Bogart Rogers was associate producer.

"DESIRE"

All screen lovers who count Marlene Dietrich and Gary Cooper among their favourites have a rare treat waiting for them at the Majestic Theatre, where the new Paramount romantic comedy, "Desire," opens to-day. It is the first time this glamorous pair has been cast together since "Morocco."

Comedy, drama and adventure are expertly interwoven into the texture of this exciting and diverting film, which recounts the romantic adventures that follow a sensational jewel robbery by a breath-taking Continental beauty. The clever way in which Miss Dietrich purloins a costly string of pearls while the owner and a psychiatrist are going through a comedy of errors, of her contriving, cannot be divulged as it would eliminate the surprise that attends this amusing situation.

The romance is bright, ardent, believable. These screen lovers belong together. Director Frank Borzage certainly was perspicacious when he placed them first in a list he prepared of the outstanding screen lovers of all time. They belong at the top of the list, if only because of their brilliant performance in "Desire."

Fine work is done by the members of the supporting cast which includes John Halliday, William Frawley, Ernest Coesart and Alan Mowbray.

"A MIDSUMMER NIGHT'S DREAM"

"A Midsummer Night's Dream," Warner Bros. mammoth spectacle will be seen at the Oriental Theatre to-day and to-morrow, and on account of the unusual length of the picture there will be three performances daily at 2.30 p.m., 6.00 p.m. and 9.30 p.m. Reinhardt's stage production of "A Midsummer Night's Dream" is a revelation. He made it interesting. With the resources of the great Warner Bros. organization at his command—unlimited technical facilities, stars and writers—this man whose genius rebuilt the world's stage, has shattered the comparatively young precedents of the screen.

"A Midsummer Night's Dream" is a mighty epic of the screen produced by Max Reinhardt and directed by himself and William Dieterle. The dances were directed by Bronislawa Nijinska and Nina Theilade and set to the beautiful music of Mendelssohn as arranged by Erich Wolfgang Korngold. There is an all star cast cast which includes James Cagney, Joe E. Brown, Dick Powell, Jean Muir, Victor Jory, Verree Teasdale, Anita Louise, Hugh Herbert, Frank McHugh and scores of others. The screen play is by Charles Kenyon and Mary McCall, Jr. Costumes are by Max Ree, noted designer.

"MARY OF SCOTLAND"
KATHARINE HEPBURN • FREDRIC MARCH

"I'D GIVE MY LIFE"

The grim, stark tragedy of a condemned man's slow, terrified march to the gallows, along the dread "last mile," is graphically brought to the screen in "Id Give My Life," gripping new Paramount film based on "The Noose" stage thriller of a decade which closes to-day at the Queen's Theatre.

The story concerns an honest politician who aims to rid his state of gangsters who have invaded his state. The racket chief, holding the strongest weapon in the game—the threat of scandal—against the Governor's wife! Tom Brown, as the young gang member, is the innocent pawn in the game, and when he discovers that he is about to be used to break a tortured woman's heart he rebels—preferring to go to the gallows with sealed lips, rather than add to her sorrows.

How a telephone call interrupts the dreaded "last mile" and the surprising climax which is brought about in the Governor's office straightening out the life of four tormented lives and bring peace and happiness to the lives of innocent sufferers.
Supporting Tom Brown in the cast are Sir Guy Standing, Frances Drake, and Janet Beecher. Directed by Edwin L. Marin.

CARLES "SWITCHES"

INTIMIDATION CHARGE SEQUEL

Magistrate's Kindly Advice

The intimidation charge, brought by a 52-year-old Wei Hui Wei, tailor, Cheung Yue-fu, of No. 50, Hennessey Road, against three of his countrymen, Chu Hing-tang, Keung Ping-huen and Tau Ching-ting, were concluded yesterday at the Central Magistracy before Mr. W. Schofield.

Inspector A. E. Carey appeared for the prosecution, and Mr. C. E. R. Sanderson represented the defendants while Mr. G. S. Ford, of Wilkinson and Grist, held a watching brief for the complainant.

It was alleged that an affray occurred on October 13 that necessitated the removal of the complainant and his friend, Koo Cheung Yee, to the Government Civil Hospital for medical treatment. Complainant suffered from an injured nose while Koo had a scalp wound alleged to have been inflicted by Keung.

CURSING EACH OTHER

Koo, in the witness stand, stated that the affray occurred at his shop at No. 49, Johnston Road, Wanchai, when the complainant asked the first defendant, Chu, who the Naval Tailors Union was progressing. Defendant took that as an insult and admonished Cheung in immoderate language. Curses were hurled back and forth, but it was not until late in the evening of the same day that anything of a serious nature occurred.

Two of the defendants, Chu and Keung assaulted Cheung with a bowl and a stool, and in attempting to pacify the aggressors, Koo himself came forcibly in contact with the stool.

As there was insufficient grounds for the charge of intimidation, the third defendant was discharged from the court.

Mr. Sanderson then informed his Worship that since the intimidation charges were dismissed against all the defendants, he was prepared to admit the charge of common assault.

A MINOR AFFAIR

The affair, he continued, was a very minor one, and there was nothing more than "a bloody nose and a broken head," which fortunately, healed very quickly, and everyone connected with the case appeared to be in perfectly good health and spirits.

Sympathy was felt for the second defendant who came in late in the affray, and he merely did so in the effort to rescue his friend, who, he thought, was in danger.

A fine of $50 was imposed on Chu and $20 on Keung, and both were bound over in the sum of $100 each to keep the peace for a year.

Mr. Schofield commented at the conclusion that if the complainant was less sarcastic in the future, he would have less trouble for himself.

INDECENT ASSAULT ALLEGED

Charge Brought By Undergraduate

AGAINST HAWKER

Miss Patricia Chang, of Ling-nam University at Canton was watching the show window of Mayfair and Company on Queen's Road on Armistice night when, she alleged, Yu Choy Chan, 22, an unlicensed hawker, came from the opposite side of the street and indecently assaulted her.

Before Mr. E. Keen at the Central Magistracy yesterday, Inspector Baker said that there were no witnesses, and it was a case of one's word against the other.

On the witness stand, Miss Chang stated that she gave chase to defendant and enlisted the aid of a constable, who apprehended the accused.

She asked that the defendant be taken to Mr. Charles Gray, manager of the Majestic Dance hall. Accused was later charged at the Central police station.

KING OF ITALY'S BIRTHDAY HONOURED

"Traditional Friendship" Must Be Upheld

LARGE CROWD AT RECEPTION

Speaking at a reception held in the Hong Kong Hotel Roof Garden yesterday morning in celebration of the 67th birthday of King Victor Emmanuel III of Italy, the Consul General of Italy (Com. Uff. A. Bianconi) said that in the East where the noble sailors and soldiers of Great Britain appear as the guards of the European civilisation, the people in Hong Kong were standing for the same ideals and were watching with unconcealed interest and anxiety the unceasing efforts of China towards the completion of a new social and political order.

The Consul General, referring to the Coronation of King Edward, expressed hearty wishes that His Majesty may live long for the welfare of his subjects and the benefit of the world.

In the course of his reply, H. E. the Governor said that friendship between Italy and Britain was traditional, and between friends there was no room for evasion or prevarication.

CONSUL'S SPEECH

The Consul General said:—
Your Excellency, the Governor, Excellencies, Dear Colleagues, Members of the Council, Ladies and Gentlemen:—

On November 12, 1935 I did not foresee I should have the privilege of addressing you at a similar meeting on November 12, 1936. It has been a delightful feeling to find myself still for a few months with old friends among whom I have spent one of the happiest periods of my life. No doubt, life is not only agreeable here even if you don't put up with the bad months and the typhoons, but it affords to everyone a wider outlook upon the things of the near East and the far West.

During the last year, old Europe and the world at large have witnessed many political developments which have to a certain extent my country. Even if the passions of the hour have been fanned sometimes by prejudice and lack of knowledge, the crisis which has followed has been beneficial by removing misunderstanding and by reducing to their real value some international institutions. We have learned that the interests of some nations which can appear purely co-existent are really complementary and that every disagreement is bound to find a ready solution on which rest the guarantees of peace and friendship.

RESPECT OF FOREIGN NATIONS

It would be needless to point out the principal facts which have marked the reign of Victor Emmanuel III, whose 67th birthday Italy is commemorating to-day. He has won the respect of the foreign nations and his work has been crowned by the addition of the title of Emperor of Ethiopia which has been recognized to His Majesty by the power of his people and by the unanimous even if not yet expressed consent of the world.

During his reign the corporate state has been created which through the reorganization of the political and economical structure has put an end to the war between classes and subordinated the individual to the state. In foreign relations, the work of the King with the wise collaborations of a great leader has proved a valuable asset to peace by keeping in its limits a purely modern colonial expedition. In the East, where the noble sailors and soldiers of Great Britain appear as the guards of the European civilisation, we are standing for the same ideals and are watching with unconcealed interest and anxiety the unceasing efforts of China towards the completion of a new social and political order.

GOVERNOR'S WORK ADMIRABLE

It has been my privilege in Hong Kong to admire the daily work of your Governor whose efficiency and courtesy, the foreign consuls, like any body else, have been able to appreciate. It is a pleasure for me to tender through him my respects to His Majesty the King of Great Britain who embodies the virtues of his people and its military past. At this moment the British Empire is busily preparing for the Coronation, let me express to my name and in that of my countrymen living here, the hearty wish that he may long live for the welfare of his subjects and for the benefit of the world. (Applause).

The toast of H. M. King Edward was honoured with enthusiasm.

GOVERNOR'S REPLY

Proposing a toast to H. M. the King of Italy, Sir Andrew Caldecott said:—

Mr. Consul General.—On behalf of all your guests here this morning I ask you to accept our warm gratitude for your hospitality and for the opportunity thus given us of celebrating you and your fellow countrymen in this Colony on the anniversary of your Monarch's birthday. If I may be permitted to introduce a personal note I would like to tell you, Mr. Bianconi, what a great pleasure it is to us that you should be our host to-day. So many people that we could ill spare have left us during the current year that we are delighted indeed that your transfer, which we had reason to apprehend taking place in its early months, has been postponed and that your genial personality presides over this auspicious occasion. (Applause).

TRADITIONAL FRIENDSHIP

Friendship between Italy and Britain is traditional, and between friends there is no room for evasion or prevarication. We need not therefore attempt to dissemble the fact that the recent past has presented an emergence of grave difficulties between our two great nations. Rather let us take heart from the fact that nowhere in the world will the Toast which it is now my honour to propose receive a more sincere and hearty response than here in Hong Kong from us all this morning. Your Excellencies, Ladies and Gentlemen, I bid you drink to the health of His Majesty the King of Italy Long may he reign! (Applause). The toast met with enthusiastic response.

Among those present included His Excellency the Governor, Sir Andrew Caldecott, and Lady Caldecott, accompanied by Capt. W. J. R. Craig, A.D.C., H.E. the General Officer Commanding, Major-General A. UPPER CYLINDER LUBRICATION.

In practically every car, new and old, there is a tendency for rapidly moving parts at the top of the cylinder to run rather too dry with the result that the cylinder wall becomes worn and scored, rings work loose, and valves stems are apt to stick. An upper cylinder lubricant is necessary for perfect lubrication and Messrs. Wakefield, after exhaustive tests, have produced Castrolite. This oil gets just where you want—the top end of the cylinders, piston rings, valves and valve stems. Castrolite reduces the formation of carbon, since the walls of the combustion chamber are always covered with a film of oil; while such carbon as is deposited is easier to remove. Castrolite reaches parts of the engine that cannot be effectively lubricated from the sump. Some motorists add ordinary lubricating oil to the petrol, but this has been found unsatisfactory. Effective lubrication via the carburettor necessitates the use of oil specially blended for the purpose such as Castrolite. Kays Don and other experts realise the value of Castrolite. A quart tin cost $3.50 and contains sufficient oil to treat 160 gallons of fuel which is less than three cents a gallon of fuel.

MASS ARRESTS IN RUSSIA

Moscow, Nov. 11.
Following the mass arrest of foreigners here and elsewhere in Russia, it is understood that allegations of espionage and sabotage in favour of a certain central European power have been made against a large number, both of foreign and Russian nationality. The German Embassy here has made an official inquiry regarding the German nationals arrested.

REPORTS CONFIRMED

Moscow, Nov. 12.
The reports emanating from Warsaw that many foreign specialists and experts living in the Soviet Union have been arrested, is now confirmed. The Soviet Russian semi-official news agency reports that in Moscow several foreign specialists, among them one German, have been arrested for having pursued activities of subversive nature. Magistrates are examining the affair.

CHARGE FRAMED

Moscow, Nov. 17.
The arrested foreigners will be charged with "activities against the State," announces the Tass Agency.

STRICT NEUTRALITY
BY AMERICA

Roosevelt's Statement To Spanish Envoy

Paris, Nov. 12.
President F. D. Roosevelt, so a message here states, has informed the Spanish Ambassador in Washington that the U. S. Government would observe strict neutrality in the Spanish conflict. The United States Government will follow developments in Spain with interest, but will not recognise any Government until it proves that it is in a position to secure peace and order. It is stated that the U. S. Government will take no official step in the matter, until the British Government has recognised one or the other Governments in Spain, or established formal relations.

London, Nov. 12.
Britain's production of steel last month reached a new high level of 1,060,500 tons. The output of ingots and castings exceeded September's record figure by 33,500 tons. Activity in this industry is so great that it is almost certain that the output of steel for 1936

British Shipping

Striking evidence of improvement in the state of British merchant shipping is given by the last quarterly return of vessels laid up.

The Chamber of Shipping statistics show that on August 1 the number of idle craft of British ownership in the home ports was 161, with a net tonnage of 373,107. This time last year the figures were 217 ships and 486,023 tons. Comparison with the worst period of the depression must not be neglected. In 1932, 830 ships were laid up with a total tonnage of 2,168,632. Since that time reduction has been steady though slow. Much of it unfortunately was due not to the greater activity of shipping but to the breaking up of idle tonnage for which owners could see no future.

During the last six months there has been a marked change for the better.

The decline in the amount of tonnage laid up has been accompanied by an increase in the amount in commission. Last quarter this increase was no less than 244,000 gross tons. We cannot yet declare satisfaction with the progress made.

During the past ten years British shipping has shrunk by more than two million tons, and though the United States fared still worse, almost every other country has added largely to its merchant fleet.

In 1914 Britain owned 41.6 per cent. of the world's tonnage. Britain's share now is only 26.8 per cent. Yet with a population 10 per cent. larger her dependence on sea-borne supplies is much greater to-day.

It is, therefore, much to be desired that this recent improvement should be progressive. The prospects are good.

Compared with foreign fleets our mercantile marine is more modern and more efficient and accordingly in a position to obtain the utmost advantage from any larger movement of world trade. That lead in efficiency we are likely to increase. The amount of tonnage under construction in our yards is a good deal more than the aggregate of the four leading foreign countries.

Such activity shows the enterprise of British shipowners, which has had little enough to stimulate it for a long time, and also their confidence in the future. That appears to be well grounded. Reduction of surplus tonnage has been so drastic that very few serviceable ships are now laid up.

Demand for shipping has risen sharply. The first cause is the necessity for a large movement of cereals from the western hemisphere to Europe. That has already raised freights from a level which hardly covered running expenses to a figure modestly remunerative. Secondly, the higher prices of primary products, increasing the prosperity of the great agricultural territories all over the world, must expand international trade.

Stabilisation of currencies and removal of restrictions promise still further development.

will be about 11,500,000 tons, thus far exceeding the record tonnage of 9,842,400 for 1935.

BRITISH AIR
SERVICESTrans-Atlantic
Negotiations

London, Nov. 11.
The under Secretary for Air, Sir Philip Sassoon was questioned in the House of Commons regarding British air services in North and South Atlantic.

He said that since the agreement announced on July 13, negotiations had continued between Governments of the United Kingdom, Canada and the Irish Free State with the United States Government with regard to the establishment of the North Atlantic service. Active preparations of air bases, fully equipped with necessary wireless and meteorological facilities, were in hand in the Irish Free State and Newfoundland.

It was hoped that experimental flights would begin in the spring and that the commencement of a regular service would follow as soon as sufficient experience had been gained.

With regard to the South Atlantic service, tenders had been received and were now under consideration. The commencement of the service depended on the result of this examination.

SUDETEN GERMANS

"Hong Kong Daily Press" Special Prague, Nov. 10.

In the budget committee on Thursday, Deputy Kundt made a statement on behalf of the Sudeten German party, leader Konrad Henlein, who could himself not be present, not being a member of the Czechoslovakian Parliament.

Henlein stated that the Sudeten Germans had been radicalised by the policy of the Czechish Government. We prefer to let ourselves be thrown into prison than to be intellectually isolated. It is declared that autonomy splits a state. But autonomy must be made in such a way that it creates confidence and that it is unable to split a state. We Sudeten Germans are capable of administering ourselves politically. If the Czechs think they can treat us as a pawn in the political game, then they are mistaken. After ten years activism, we have no more confidence in the Czechs. They will not be able to get rid of our movement. Only after the Czechs have passed through a spiritual conversion, will we speak differently from now. We are prepared for anything that could lead to an understanding within the nation.

GERMAN TRADE WITH POLAND

"Hong Kong Daily Press" Special Berlin, Nov. 12.

The German Bureau for the supervision of foreign trade reports that since the signing of the trade pact between Germany and Poland on November 4, 1935, trade between the two countries has shown a big increase in volume. In December 1935, the first month after the treaty came into force, Poland's imports from Germany were only 8.5 million zloty, but in July 1936 they had risen to 12.8 million zloty. Polish exports to Germany have been somewhat higher than her imports, with few exceptions, but in recent months German exports to Poland have shown an increase compared with last year.

During the first seven months of this year, Polish imports from Germany have risen by altogether eight million zloty, or an average of one million zloty a month, against last year. Polish exports to Germany are on the average about 700,000 zloty higher than her monthly imports.

NOT MEETING NEED

Miss Fung has written: "In reviewing this our third year's work we feel that we have every reason to be thankful for the way in which our work has grown, and we believe that our Shelters are providing a definite need in the life of the poorer class of people in Hong Kong."

I do not know that I agree; we are providing three shelters accommodating 437 men per night. Considering the number of Street Sleepers, I think we are only providing the need. Even if we had ten shelters, we should not be meeting it. From the first, the Society has adopted the policy of keeping expenses within the sum provided by the public, and has carried forward a balance from one year to the next because the expense involved in equipping new shelters has to be met at the beginning of the winter and before the subscriptions begin to come in.

Settlement and Chinese police have combed their respective territories all night and this morning for a scent of the murderer without tangible success.

giving us the use of an old knitting factory rent free and also to the Kowloon Residents Association for their help and co-operation—they appointed two representatives on our committee, Mr. E. Kern and Mr. F. C. Mow Fung and rendered considerable assistance in connection with the Kowloon shelter.

We hope to have their continued help this winter. We have not yet found suitable premises at Kowloon but the K. R. A. have appointed Mr. C. E. Terry as their representative on the committee and are already looking for a suitable building.

AIM OF SOCIETY

The simple aim of this society, from the beginning, has been merely to provide shelter, a bunk and a few gunny bags for as many men who would otherwise sleep on the streets, as possible. The only other comfort provided for the men has been a cup of hot tea, and a hot meal on three nights, Christmas Day, Chinese New Year and the closing night. But we find it necessary to go a little further, for reasons of health it is necessary to insist that every man has a bath before occupying his bunk. For the same reason it is necessary to examine each man as he is admitted into the shelter, this means turning some men away or sending them to hospital and treating others for minor ailments and injuries on the spot. Thus you will see from the report that 253 cases were sent to hospital during the year and 6,226 minor cases were treated at the shelters. Attention is also drawn to the treatment of opium addicts which was organised in connection with the shelters. Other activities which are incidental to the actual running of the shelters include the evangelistic work organised by Mr. Lee Kau Yan and efforts which have been made to find work for such of the men as appear to be employable and to arrange for repatriation of men who have been stranded in Hong Kong. This latter work has been the concern of individuals, the society has no machinery for dealing with these cases and cannot make it a charge on the funds.

accumulated experience it has been possible to run the shelters more cheaply. In 1933-34, we equipped the St. Peter's shelter and registered 16,372 men, total cost $3,100, last winter, we registered 51,637 men—equipped the Yaumatei shelter—total cost $4,150. We have a balance of only $2,000 and do not feel justified at the moment in making any attempt to increase the number of shelters from three to four. The work needs expanding and we cannot expand unless we have the money. I would like therefore whilst thanking those who have subscribed to this work in the past, to ask for their continued and increased support.

The Hon. Dr. Kotewall seconded the adoption of the report and statement of accounts and the motion was carried unanimously.

DISCUSSION

The Chairman invited discussion and the Rev. J. R. Higgs asked if it would be possible to give something more than tea to the street sleepers at the shelters every night.

The Chairman replied that the Society had been approached by the Government who did not consider it was desirable that meals be provided because it might attract people who actually did not just come there in the hopes of normally sleep at the shelters but getting a meal.

Mrs. Bolt mentioned that last year several beds were booked with the consequence that many men who were waiting outside were not admitted. These beds, she said, should not have been kept by the others. It was supposed to be the case that the younger men were kept waiting for the older men.

Another member remarked that he had frequently had beds already by men who returned later. The Chairman: It is hardship for a man who comes to the shelter every night and then in a particular case is not able to get a bed.

FALSE RUMOUR

Mr. E. O'Neill Shaw: I think it would be in the best interests of all that a rumour that the Society makes an alleged charge of two cents per person per night be denied.

The Chairman: I think that is a very important point. I have heard of the rumour that has been going about. The Society does not make any charge for the use of their shelters.

Mr. Shaw: May I ask what actual grant the Government makes to this movement if any?

The Chairman: They do not make any grant actually in money but they help in various other ways.

WHAT ABOUT IRREGULARS

Miss Mow Fung said that from the report she had noticed that last year they had catered for very much less persons. That, of course, went to prove that there were regular people coming to the shelters every night during the winter. She could not quite decide herself the policy as to whether they should try to give everybody a chance or whether should cater for the regulars.

Mr. Shaw: I feel it would be rather hard lines on the man who comes there casually.

The Chairman, in declaring the meeting closed, said that all the suggestions made would receive very careful consideration at the first Committee meeting. He thanked the speakers for their suggestions and the people for their attendance at the meeting.

Publicity In Verse

Communications from business establishments are not usually characterised by the dazzle and depth of creative art, concerning which "we journalists who write pieces for the papers" think we know so much.

Therefore, when we opened a letter from Messrs. Calbeck, MacGregor & Co., Ltd., yesterday we certainly did not expect a poetic effusion dealing with a subject very near and dear to us. Perhaps it is superfluous to explain to our alert readers, that the subject versified dealt with the palate and the stomach—in a word, alcohol.

On odd occasions (particularly odd sometimes) instead of diligently "taking down" the dialectic pearls profusely scattered from the head table, we have applied our undoubted (take that literally) talents in the direction of versification of a more or less epicurean character.

But that's another story, and certainly not worthy of print.

We must confess, however, that we have rarely read such good publicity in verse as that which this well-known firm sent to us yesterday.

So, we give you the toast as it was given to us:

"Gentlemen—What and When!" You'll find that Whittables agree With Chablis or with Pommery.

Then take with soup (a thick, or clear) a Calbeck's Sherry or Madeira.

With fish the Pommery again Or Vintage Bollinger Champagne. A Demhard's Hock or Dry Moselle Or Barsac, Graves, Chablis as well.

With entrees Claret we avow Are coming back to favour now Lafite or any famed Chateau. Those sound red wines of old Bordeaux.

Warmed by the sun's benignant flame Our Burgundies with roast or game Cannot be bettered you must own Who taste our Chambertin or Beaune.

Our Old Brown Sherry rich and old With cheese; yet some will always hold A sweet Madeira's better fare With Gruyere or with Camembert.

Then comes dessert; on any night To pass the Port's a sacred rite. A Tawny in our Summer clime. A Vintage Port in winter time. Or if you can afford V'quem Drink that and win a gourmet's fame.

Enfin, with coffee, Connoisseurs Might take the world-famed Bols Liqueurs, Or rich Drambuie some prefer. And gain the title "epicure." But Cognac's mellow fine bouquet Will satisfy the real gourmet. If you make application To Messrs. Calbeck, MacGregor & Co., Ltd., you can obtain an artistically produced folder with this helpful advice in verse printed inside.

London, Nov. 11.
His Majesty the King, unnoticed and unheralded, paid an informal visit to the Floodit Field of Remembrance in Westminster Abbey and planted a plain wooden cross inscribed, "In Memory of King George V."

The King purchased two poppies from an ex-serviceman, placing a bundle of notes in the collecting box.

MEXICO CITY REPERCUSSIONS

GENERAL FRANCO'S BROTHER

On Visit To Rome

Naples, Nov. 12. Major Ramon Franco, the general's brother arrived here en route to Rome, but he refused to disclose the reason for the visit.

In answer to a question as to the Spanish insurgent plans for the future, he declared they wanted a national government which would ensure tranquillity. The revolution followed no party lines and was not Catholic. The new government would be military at first and then organised on a corporative basis as Italy.—Reuter.

ONSLAUGHT FAILS

Madrid, Nov. 11. How yet another determined effort to enter the city of Madrid was frustrated is described to-day by Reuter's correspondent who visited the Government lines this afternoon to the north-west of the capital just as the attack matured, after artillery preparation.

The objective of the rebels was the so-called French Bridge, cutting the Corunna Road a mile from the North Station.

The Government troops' morale was excellent in the face of a hellish onslaught by guns, tanks, machine-guns and grenades, the militia grimly hung on to the position and good-humouredly pointed out to the correspondent the insurgent trenches near-by.

Then came the Nationalists' charge on the Colmenares Quarter. A combined force of Legionnaires and Moors came over the parapet, behind an artillery barrage. But the defenders promptly found the range and a hail of shells and machine-gun lead withered the attackers' ranks. The survivors fell back, and took refuge in ruined houses close to the bridge.

The capital's biggest ordeal, ever, continues. In the central streets numerous shells are crashing, as they are in the Southwest and the Rosales Quarter, while from the streets between the Puerta del Sol and the National Palace the rattle of machine-guns is audible between the thunder of exploding shells.—Reuter.

SHELLING RENEWED

London, Nov. 11. The shelling of Madrid was renewed to-day with increasing intensity, according to a telephone message received from Reuter's correspondent in the besieged city. Shells have been exploding in all parts of the capital.

The insurgent batteries still occupy the same positions they have held for the past two days, indicating that the Government's troops have succeeded only in holding up the attack. The optimistic talk regarding the progress of defence and counter-offensive operations, appearing in the papers, is not reflected in the pessimistic attitude of the inhabitants. People only venture out of their homes, when compelled to do so.

The inhabitants are generally apathetic regarding the reports of Government successes in the provinces, while the newspapers are publishing adverse comments in connection with the departure of the Government and some municipal officials from the capital.—Reuter.

The morning papers, discussing the toasts, state that the three countries of the Rome Protocols are inspired by three ideals: clarity, sincerity and unity of purpose. MILITARY MACHINE IN RUSSIA

Views Of British Experts

London, Nov. 12. British military experts lately from Russia after an exhaustive survey give an impressive account of the Russian Army.

The efficiency of tanks, of which the experts saw hundreds performing most exacting evolutions, specially impressed them. Breakdowns were almost unknown. One two-ton tank taking a ditch dropped some seven feet through the air and landed unperturbed.

The experts thought that Russian aeroplanes were below the highest standard of other countries, but the pilots appear to be unsurpassed.

The officer class as seen in manoeuvres appear to be the weakest branch, lacking initiative and quickness in dealing with any emergency outside a prearranged plan. The General Staff, however, including several ex-Tsarist officers appears thoroughly competent in rail transport. They are still deficient in mobilization and likely to be slow.

On the other hand the army is well equipped with motor lorries.

The British experts visited a mass production factory reputed to turn out three hundred lorries daily. The troops were well clothed and fed, smart, their morale high and inspired by assiduous exhortations to prepare for the German menace.—Reuter.

FRANCE LOYAL TO LEAGUE

Geneva Will Be The Hope Of Nations

Paris, Nov. 12

The significant declarations made by the various French statesmen and politicians on the occasion of the Armistice Celebrations shows that France, despite the recent setbacks, is still firmly behind the League of Nations as sole means of securing European Peace.

The former Premier Herriot declared that his peace policy had always been based on the League of Nations and the principles of the indivisibility of peace and collective security. Admitting that these principles had been subject to much criticism during the past years, Herriot nevertheless expressed absolute conviction that they would again be given paramount importance in the future of international politics.

Paul Boncour, France's League of Nations Representative, confined his remarks to attacks on Germany, making Germany responsible for all unrest and uncertainty in Europe to-day.

The former Premier Flandin expressed the opinion that enough errors had been committed and enough false steps taken, and that every country must avoid interfering in the private affairs of another country. Geneva has been the hope of the nations, and will continue to be so, but if Geneva should prove ineffective in preserving peace at the present moment, then another way has to be found.—Transocean News Service.

GERMAN COLONIAL RIGHTS

("Hong Kong Daily Press" Special)

London, Nov. 10. Sir Arnold Wilson, M.P., in a letter published in the "Times," has made yet another appeal to grant Germany colonial rights. In his letter, he refused the opinion expressed by Mr. Adams that Germany was unfit to own colonies, and that the possession of these would not, in any case, be of economic value for her. The statement that National Socialist Germany would not be a reliable trustee for the welfare of natives was also denied by Sir Arnold Wilson, who declared that there was no State in Europe more capable of playing a worthy role on the colonial stage.

No one could seriously demand that the present distribution of the African colonies should remain indefinitely, and the greatest European power be excluded. "Let us openly recognise," conclude Sir Arnold, "that the clauses of the Versailles Treaty, whereby Germany is robbed of all her overseas possessions, must be revised."—Transocean News Service.

KING VISITS FLEET

Rough Weather In Harbour

London, Nov. 12.

Unfavourable weather was experienced when the King arrived at Portland on his visit to the Home Fleet. There were several inches of water in the main square at Portland when the King wearing the uniform of an Admiral of the Fleet left the Royal train and drove to the dockyard where he inspected a guard of honour from the Foreign Legion. His Majesty was received by the Commander-in-Chief of the Home Fleet and boarded the Admiralty yacht accompanied by Sir Samuel Hoare and Sir Ernie Chatfield, First Sea Lord.

Before the King embarked four bluejackets crossing the harbour pinnace were blown against the breakwater but managed to scramble thereon before the pinnace sank. They were rescued by a lifeboat.

The King toured the line of battleships and boarded several, the first being H.M.S. Nelson. His Majesty was given a royal salute of twenty-one guns.—Reuter's Bulletin Service.

Hamburg, November 12.

Hurricanes of unprecedented violence, the like of which cannot be recalled, have been blowing continuously for several weeks over the North Sea and the English Channel which have seriously affected shipping. The newly-installed non-changeable London-Paris sleeping car service had to be suspended. Rain and fog seriously impair visibility, necessitating the fog horns of Folkestone harbour to be sounded continuously. A second attempt to relieve the six lighthouse keepers imprisoned in their lighthouse proved abortive.

A 73-year-old passenger of the Queen Mary who had come from the United States to England to celebrate his golden wedding died in Southampton from injuries sustained while travelling across in stormy weather.

Latest weather forecasts predict continuation of the violent storms in undiminished strength.—Transocean News Service.

GALE FORCE

London, Nov. 12.

When King Edward reached Portland early this morning to fulfil his two days' visit to the Fleet, one of the worst storms was raging that port had known for a considerable time. The wind was blowing at gale force, some of gusts reaching eighty miles an hour.

During the night several destroyers and submarines stationed at the outer end of the breakwater where they were exposed to full force of gale were sent to the safer anchorage of Weymouth Bay. Portland railway station where the Royal train had drawn up in the early hours is only 150 yards from the beach and flood waters at times reached the axles and for several hours made the Portland-Weymouth road impassable.

When dawn broke the storm somewhat abated, but seas were still running high when the King, after inspecting the guards of honour at the dockyard, embarked from the pier in an admiral's barge to make a tour of inspection which, according to programme, was to include visits to four battleships, aircraft carrier and three cruisers. As the King embarked the signal was flown from the flagship and a Royal Salute was fired. Despite the storm the King carried out his original programme.

SHIPS SEEK SHELTER

This morning's gale had travelled eastwards across the Atlantic where it was reported to be raging up to 800 miles West of Ireland. Round the British coasts scores of vessels had to run for shelter.

The Channel steamer Isle of Thanet with 120 passengers fought her way through a sixty-mile gale from Folkestone for Boulogne this morning.—British Wireless.

All's well with the Breast-fed Baby

The most valuable service a mother can render her baby is to ensure that he will be fed from the breast. Upon this may well depend his future health and happiness. Maternal milk is the one perfect food for baby. It is naturally constituted to suit his delicate digestion and to provide every nutritive element required to ensure healthy growth and development. Doctors and Nurses know the remarkable value of 'Ovaltine' to expectant and nursing mothers. Taken regularly before and after baby comes, 'Ovaltine' not only promotes a rich and ample supply of breast-milk but it maintains the mother's strength and vitality.

TRAPPED IN HOLD

Chinese Workman Meets Death

RESULT OF FIRE IN VESSEL

As a sequel to the fire which broke out on Wednesday night in the forehold of the steamer Recorder, which was lying alongside the Talkoo Dockyard, the police report the finding of the body of a Chinese workman who, it is believed, made the fatal error of trying to escape through a hole which, unfortunately, gave no exit. It is further believed that the man met his death through being suffocated by the smoke.

Late yesterday morning the ship officers were still busily investigating the vessel's hold in an endeavour to discover the original cause of the fire.

The Recorder is a cable vessel of 2,275 gross tonnage and was built in 1902 by Messrs. D. J. Dunbar and Company, Glasgow, for the Imperial and International Communications, Limited. She is a twin-screw vessel with a length of 295 feet.

FRENCH RULE IN INDO-CHINA

Compared With Britain in India

It is most difficult for a Frenchman, and probably for any but an Englishman, to discover the exact meaning and the minute bearing of your Imperial policy.

This comment was made by M. Le Neveu, Director-General of the Union Coloniale Française, when he read a paper on Administration in Indo-China with Indian Comparisons, before the East India Association in London recently.

"When we hear of Dominion status, we are puzzled," M. Le Neveu declared, "but when we are confronted with the admission of India to membership of the League of Nations, we are amazed. Our logic receives a shock."

"DARING" INDIAN POLICY

"The idea of an Indian Dominion is to us very daring. If I am correctly informed, in the self-governing British Dominions the European population is paramount, with the possible exception of the Union of South Africa, where most of the natives are so backward that their numerical preponderance may less be taken into account."

"In India the British are an infinitesimal minority, and you are there nearer our position in Indo-China, although our population ratio is higher than yours in India. With our scanty knowledge of the working of your institutions we wonder a little how in the end a non-British Dominion may fit it."

"Students of colonial affairs know, for instance, that there have been occasions on which immigration of Indians to British territories was apt to cause friction. This, of course, is a purely internal affair of your own."

FRENCH "GENIUS"

M. Le Neveu pointed out that there was no common measure between French administration in Indo-China and British administration in India, because the administration of Indo-China, in most respects, bore the mark of French "genius."

With the French everything was supposed to be closely linked to the rest, to the extent that "from the bottom up" one floor had not been added to the edifice until the previous one had been found to be sound and solid.

In India, on the other hand, everything was left to the force of events, constituting on Britain's part a patient and well-wishing effort to adapt methods, even principles, to facts.

TELEVISION FOR DOCTORS

Surgeon's Forecast Of 20 Years Hence

The use of aeroplanes for doctors to visit their patients, aerial ambulances with flat roofs for their reception in hospitals, cars cruising at 100 miles an hour, the isolation of cyclists and pedestrians and television as a means of medical examination.

This was a vision of the future only twenty years hence described by Sir Crisp English at the opening of the autumn session at the Medical School of St. George's Hospital recently, according to a report of his speech published in the "Lancet."

Sir Crisp said that 'planes, with the autogyro principle developed and popularised, would be almost as common as motor-cars are today.

Lifts would run up to the roofs of the hospitals, he added, to take the patients from the 'planes which brought them in.

He visualised the position on the roads thus: "The roads will be altered for increase of speed, and you in your motors will cruise along them at 100 miles an hour; pedestrians and cyclists will be isolated, and will no longer have opportunities of being killed by cars."

With the general use of telephones with television, the doctor would see on the television screen the tongues and tonsils of his patients. "He will also see his guinea," added Sir Crisp, "but will be unable to reach them."

He foreshadowed universal air-conditioning and sound-proofing of hospitals; simple apparatus for taking X-rays, like the present-day camera; the disappearance of kitchens as we now know them owing to the ease of obtaining prepared foods; and unnecessary noise as a punishable offence.

Between the medical profession and the hospitals would be a new basis of relationship. "The day will come," he asserted, "when the profession is divided up geographically around the larger hospitals, so that practitioners will regard

THE WORLD'S STOMACH REMEDY

CONTINENTAL MANOEUVRES

Lessons Of Our Own
Army Exercises

We have now reached a stage where it is possible to review the grand manoeuvres of all Continental armies. This is really the first occasion of the kind since the war, for the Army manoeuvres of Germany in particular have been on a mammoth scale this year. It may be said, in word, that all the Army experts have returned from foreign manoeuvres with words of high praise for what they have seen, and for once one is forced to the conclusion that they mean all they say. Mr. Winston Churchill, who attended the French Army manoeuvres in the Sud-Ouest, has been loud in his praise of French Army efficiency and has declared that the French Army is the finest in the world.

Earlier our critics were very impressed by the display of the mechanized forces that paraded at the close of the Italian Army manoeuvres before King Emanuel and Signor Mussolini. Then Maj.-Gen. A. P. Wavell, the head of the British Military Mission attending the Soviet Russian manoeuvres, addressing Marshal Voroshilov at the dinner given at Minsk in honour of the foreign delegations, bestowed (according to report) marked praise on the "Brilliant Red Army" and said that "its tremendous achievements, both spiritual and technical, have greatly astonished us. We particularly admire the fighting spirit and pertinacity of all your Red Army men and commanders." Like many other experts, he expressed surprise at the extent of the Red Army's mechanized resources, especially in tanks and armoured cars.

RUSSIAN OFFICERS' PRIDE IN PROFESSION

It ought to be said that, previous to this visit, some of the questions of the French experts as to the competence of the new Russian Army officers had been answered by one or two instructed Frenchmen of eminence, such as M. Herriot, and the member of the French General Staff who represented France in connection with the Staff talks in London a short time ago. Then there was a series in the "Times" by a correspondent at Rostov-on-the-Don which bore eloquent witness to the complete change in the constitution of the Russian Army as compared with pre-war.

In one of the articles, written several days before Maj.-Gen. Wavell visited Russia, that correspondent answered the question which some French Army experts have been asking lately about the capabilities of the Russian officers by saying that this year he has had long talks with generals, majors, and captains in many parts of the Union, and "they have struck me as being the most intelligent class of men I have met in Russia. They have a detailed knowledge of foreign affairs and conditions. They shrewdly assess the striking power of European armies... all I have met have spoken with a new assurance and pride in their profession."

"THE PARACHUTE STROKE"

Now, the German manoeuvres, although they have disclosed some lack of final perfection on the technical side, impressed impartial observers by the remarkable spirit and discipline of the men, the highly-mechanized quality of the mounted formations, and new spirit of realism that was imparted to the exercises. This, as a matter of fact, was also one of the outstanding features of the Russian manoeuvres.

One correspondent has reported how, in the last phase of the Russian manoeuvres, a force of 1,200 men, together with 150 machine-guns and 18 light field guns, was carried 100 miles in troop-carrying aircraft and dropped on an aerodrome behind the enemy's front. He reported that within eight minutes of the release of the parachutes the force had assembled on the ground and driven off the defenders. The enthusiasm and dash of the Russian troops in all their operations inspired the critics and it is agreed that what is now called "the parachute stroke" has tactical possibilities that it may be impossible to assess, but that it would certainly be foolish to underestimate. LEAGUE OF NATIONS

Elections And Appointments
COURT ELECTIONS

In special simultaneous meetings of the Assembly and the Council held on October 2, Professor Manley O. Hudson and Dr. Ake Hammarshjöld were elected to membership on the Permanent Court of International Justice to fill the vacancies created by the death of M. Walter Schücking and by the resignation of Mr. Frank B. Kellogg.

In a separate election on the same day, M. Cheng Tien-Hsi was also elected to fill the vacancy caused by the death of M. Wang Chung-Hui.

Judge Cheng, born in China in 1884, studied law at the University of London, where he obtained a degree of Doctor of Laws in 1915. From 1920 to 1925 he was a judge of the Supreme Court of China. He later became acting Minister of Justice of the Nanking Government. In 1935 he was appointed to the International Congress on the Unification of Penal Law held in Copenhagen. He is the author of several works relating to international law and court decisions.

LEAGUE BUDGET

A budget of 29,184,128 gold francs was adopted by the Assembly for the year 1937. As a result of the 30% devaluation of the Swiss franc, it was decided to reduce the receipts budget in gold francs by 20% or 5,836,826 gold francs. The 10% saved by the League will, as a measure of prudence, be put into a special fund to cover unforeseen eventualities owing to existing currency instability. The disposal of this special fund will be considered by the next Assembly. Meanwhile, the contributions States will have been reduced by 20% in terms of gold which, together with a reduction from previous surpluses of 2,062,479 francs, brings the sum to be allocated among League members for 1937 to 21,284,822 gold francs.

PROSPECTS OF ECONOMIC RECOVERY

A great impetus was given to the discussions at the League Assembly on the world economic situation by the ending of the so-called "gold group" (with the exception of Germany, which is still nominally on the gold standard) through the devaluation of the French franc and other currencies. The Second Committee of the Assembly, in which this discussion took place, had before it a report of the League Economic Committee emphasizing the necessity for an agreement on currency stabilization and the adjustment of internal and international price levels as a first step to consolidating and promoting the economic recovery that has already begun within most countries.

The Second Committee's report endorses the view that an agreement on currencies should lead to the removal of exchange controls and that this would open the door to the gradual abolition of excessive barriers to trade, such as quotas and high tariffs.

The Committee noted that representatives of several important countries had believed that to remove the barriers, "far from giving any particular country any unreasonable advantage, will make it possible to restore freedom of international monetary transactions as soon as possible, and to revert later to a common monetary standard based on the free exchange of gold."

RAW MATERIALS

The Committee considered that under certain circumstances the question of free commercial access to raw materials may be examined by a committee of experts set up by the Council.

"It considers that in this way the financial conditions necessary both for the resumption of national activities and for the recovery of world trade will be realised. The influx of foreign capital and the return of hoarded capital into circulation will lead to cheaper money and lower costs of production, and an increased volume of business and revenue, and the countries which have just aligned their currencies will thus be the more easily enabled to resume their place in international trade."

"Nevertheless, this trade cannot revive or develop on any large scale, so long as measures of quantitative restriction continue to limit imports. Besides being henceforward useless, such restrictions would also be dangerous. To the extent to which they continued to weigh on prices they would run the risk of destroying the balance which it had been desired to ensure, of reducing the purchasing power of the social classes whose income remains re-

Schoolboys' Win

At Pokfulam, the D.B.S. defeated the Hong Kong University by 20 runs, in the last over.

D.B.S.: 136 for 7 wickets (declared) (G. Kew 41, W. Lau 38 G. W. Hong Choy 5 for 34).

Hong Kong University: 116 (J. Fong not out 38, R. Soares 18, C. B. Sargent 5 for 61 E. Fisher 3 for 26).

After getting 6 wickets down for 49, the school boys appeared to be winning with plenty of time to spare, but a bad spell of fielding in which runs were given away and catches dropped caused the game to be prolonged until the last possible moment.

HOME SOCCER

lately fixed, and of disturbing the public peace which is essential to economic recovery.

"A policy tending to restore the free exchange of goods and services therefore appears, both in the social and economic spheres, as an indispensable corollary of the monetary adjustment. . . .

"Thus restored, the free circulation of capital and goods will have as its necessary corollary the free movement of human beings. . . .

"The re-awakening of national activities will produce a demand for labour and restore the currents of migration which, during the last century, spread the genius of Europe throughout the world. Bringing together the peoples it will help to call into existence the moral atmosphere essential to the organisation of peace. It is clear that if the restoration of world trade is to produce its full benefit, it will be necessary also to pursue actively and steadfastly the path towards political collaboration among all nations. It is, however, equally clear that improved economic conditions will facilitate this task."

RESOLUTIONS PASSED

The Assembly passed resolutions embodying these views. It requested the Council to follow the work of the International Labour Organisation on the question of migration; instructed the Fiscal Committee to push on with its work on the avoidance of double taxation, and urged recommended all States vigorously to pursue commercial policies in harmony with its recommendations. It also declared that the time had now come when "discussion of and enquiry into the question of equal commercial access for all nations to certain raw materials might usefully be undertaken with the collaboration of the principal States, whether Members or non-Members of the League, having a special interest in the matter."

The Council was asked to set up a committee composed of members of the Economic and Financial Committees of the League, together with other qualified persons, irrespective of nationality, to consider and report upon this question, and recommended that nationals of non-Member as well as Member States of the League might be represented on this committee. It asked the Secretary-General to communicate this resolution to the Governments of non-Member as well as of Member States.

Hong Kong, 12th Nov., 1936. [4816]BRITAIN'S TANK
KINGLord Nuffield And
The ArmyLord Nuffield is to be Britain's tank "king." He is to tackle the job of modernising the mechanised side of the Army and the R.A.F. ground service, states "The Daily Mail."The plant of his Wolverhampton aero factory will be converted for the production of tank engines.At the factory there will be special research laboratories which will ensure the most perfect form of military mechanisation.Lord Nuffield's interview with Mr.
Baldwin has thus produced far-reaching results.His controversy with Lord Swinton, Minister of Air, has ended. It has had the effect of making him a far more important figure in connection with rearmament than he would have been had he remained
"a shadow" scheme.

FRIENDS AGAIN

Lord Swinton and Lord Nuffield are now on the best of terms although the latter still disagrees with the "shadow policy."THE EXCHANGE

RAISEDBombshell For Brokers

London, Nov. 11.

The tin quota for Malaya, the Netherlands Indies and Nigeria has been increased to 105 per cent. of the standard tonnages for the last quarter of 1936.

Ninety per cent. of the increased quota is attributable to the International quota, the remainder being due to arrears already surrendered by Bolivia, which in the last quarter "will export ninety per cent."

The exports by participating countries, as distinct from the signatories, will be similarly reckoned at ninety per cent. of the international quota, plus their share of the Bolivian under-exports.

A look of blank amazement appeared on the faces of metal brokers when the announcement was made public. The session had opened with tin easy, owing to the holiday in the United States and the consequent lack of orders.
So the market appeared ripe for an inevitable reaction when the quota bombshell was delivered.

Theoretically, the increase releases an extra 5,500 tons in the current quarter from Malaya, Nigeria and the Netherlands Indies, but some quarters express doubts regarding their ability to produce this full extra amount.

It is generally assumed that the extra quota accorded Bolivia will be ignored, since her ability to produce it is most doubtful.

Many circles are inclined to suspect that United States pressure has been brought to bear on the Committee, since the Americans felt that the forty per cent.
rise in price within the last three months calls for drastic action by the Committee, whose task is to maintain the stability of the metal.

REITER

Now Sir Thomas Inskip, Defence Minister, and Lord Nuffield will get together and hammer out a scheme for Army mechanisation and intensive tank production.

The feature part of the programme were the Chinese dresses of ancient and modern designs. Mr. Middleton Smith said a few words on the conduct of the Chinese ladies who were in charge of the dresses and said that the dresses will be modelled by a group of Hong Kong debutantes and young matrons. The gowns were designed and were contributed by the ladies themselves and they were pleased to give one a glimpse of their wardrobe.

The first showing of the modern dresses of China was an artistic, brilliant and smart all-day costume which brought great satisfaction to all present. The most outstanding modern costume was the Chinese retting gown which was of soft white silk embroidered with delicate designs in black.

All the ancient costumes were dresses of the great and brave women of China. The first was Foo Yun, wife of an aristocrat. The dress was richly embroidered with green jade on a satin peach background with a typical traditional lap-over the neck line worn by Evelyn Chan. There followed a costume which takes one back to the Ching dynasty. Empress Dowager (Helen Chu), she was the grandmother of Pui Yi, the Boy King of the Manchus. She ruled China with an iron hand. However, through her vanity and extravagant taste, she squandered millions of the public funds and built a summer palace and magnificent art structures in old Peking.

The gown was very long with long sleeves and turned up cuffs was the style at the time. The strange part of this costume was the foot-wear, the shoes having their heels in the centre of the shoes, thus giving perfect balance and grace to the person.

The famous heroine from the Romance of the Western Chamber which has its setting in the Yuan dynasty, Chouie Ying Ying (Bessie Pao). The gown consisted of a short jacket and a long skirt typical of this period.

The next costume was that of the personal maid to Chouie Ying Ying. She was noted for her keen wit and unusual intelligence. Her sleeveless jacket was artistically embroidered with two long tassels and her hair in one braid denoting her position as a maid.

Yue Gay (Ena Fung) the beautiful mistress who inspired the tragic warrior, Hon Yue, to many victories but when the final defeat was met, he killed her and himself. Her warrior-like costume shows the tight sleeve, wide tight girdle and swords and a flowing cape.

Next came the famous and beautiful daughter of the Minister of War, Si See (May Fung), she volunteered to spy when the enemies invaded China. She succeeded in becoming the mistress to the enemy general and through information thus secured gave China victory over the enemy.

Fantastic and brilliant was the costume of the Empress of Old China (Jenny Wong). The gown denotes royalty. The "Chiu dye" or hoop-like girdle represented her position as Queen. The dragon motif was worn only by the royal family. The ornate head-dress which was very delicately embroidered with silver tassels was the Chinese Crown.

The organisers of the Chinese ladies' mannequin parade were Mrs. H. Lai-sun; Mrs. Li Shui-pui; Mrs. Hon. Kei-tong; Miss L. T'ao and Miss Eva Tam.

Before closing the show Mr. Middleton Smith thanked the ladies for their great help in making the parade such a success and to Malzee's for their kindness in supplying the European dresses and also thanked the generous contributors towards the children's fund.

Radio Office Fraud

$3,000 MENTIONED

Persistent rumours were current yesterday that an employee of the Government Radio office had absconded with a large sum of money.

However, no confirmation of the rumour could be obtained by a representative of the "Daily Press."

Inquiries were made at the radio office and the police station, and it was stated that a bulletin would be issued some time to-day. It was said that the sum of money was in the neighbourhood of $3,000.

Leaders Conversing

Whilst awaiting the arrival of the Governor at the Cenotaph the members of the official party exchanged greetings. This picture shows H.E. Major-General A. W. Bartholomew, G.O.C. British Troops, conversing with Rear-Admiral H. E. Yarnell, C.-in-C. U.S. Asiatic Fleet, whilst Rear-Admiral J. P. Esteva, C.-in-C. French Naval Forces in the Far East, is shaking hands with a Royal Naval Officer.

Dr. Sun Yat-sen was born in 1866 in Choy Hang Village of the Heung Shan District, now named Chung Shan District in the Province of Kwangtung.

HIS EARLY CAREER
 His uncle Mr. Sun Mee took him to Honolulu, when quite a child, and later he returned to Hong Kong and attended the Hong Kong School of Medicine, and after graduating in 1892, he established himself in practice at Macao, where he began to preach his revolutionary doctrines.

In the spring of 1895, Dr. Sun Yat-sen joined hands with Mr. Tse Tsan-tai, Mr. Yeung Ku-wan and others, and established the "Hing Chung Wui" Revolutionary Party with headquarters at No. 13, Staunton Street, Hong Kong.

A premature attempt at revolution and the capture of Canton City by Dr. Sun Yat-sen, Mr. Tse Tsan-tai, Mr. Yeung Ku-wan and others was made on October 25, 1895, which failed. Dr. Sun then fled for his life and proceeded to Japan, Honolulu, United States and England.

A LUCKY ESCAPE
 While in England, Dr. Sun Yat-sen underwent the thrilling experience of being kidnapped in London by the servants at the Chinese (Manchu) Legation, and held prisoner, pending arrangements by the Legation officials to ship and smuggle him to China.

Fortunately, Dr. Sun Yat-sen managed to get into communication with Dr. James Cantlie, his former tutor at Hong Kong, who succeeded in moving the British Government obtain his release.—T.S.M.

European Arrested

were very reticent regarding the matter and neither confirmation nor denial of the report could be obtained. Officials would make no further statement beyond the fact that "a European had been arrested in connection with opium and would probably appear before the magistrate to-day or to-morrow."

It was learned that further developments are expected.

SUNG CHEH YUAN RESIGNS

Peiping, Nov. 12.
 General Sung Cheh-yuan, Chairman of the Hopei-Chaihai Political Council, has resigned from his concurrent post as chairman of the Hopei Provincial Government.

General Feng Chi-han, divisional commander of the 29th Army, has been appointed acting chairman of Hopei.

COTTON MILL RIOT SUPPRESSED

Shanghai, Nov. 12.
 Two hundred splinters and weavers, armed by girl agitators, rioted inside a Japanese cotton mill this morning. Police restored order before much damage was done, but the management closed the mill.

About ten thousand operatives in seven mills are now affected by second. Broadcasting is well advanced in Japan where the Japanese Broadcasting Corporation has a monopoly of the air under a direct mandate from the Government. Besides the big JOAK Station in Tokyo, the Corporation operates over forty regional stations over the medium wave. The Japanese listeners pay six yen for a licence, and as there are over three million licensed listeners the Corporation has considerable money at its disposal.

JAPANESE DIVIDED IN MUSIC
 Music forms an important feature of the Japanese programme, the speaker continued, its listeners being equally divided between Western and Japanese music. The President of the Corporation, Prince Kinoo, is himself a musician and a patron and conductor of the Tokyo Symphony Orchestra. He is often heard over Station JOAK.

The Japanese start the day early in the morning with physical jerks. The language hour is a popular one, especially when English, French or German are spoken. American broadcasts are usually picked up and relayed over the Japanese network, while news relating to Japanese affairs are given both in English and Japanese.

BIGGEST RADIO STATION

The system in Seoul, Korea, is run on similar lines as in Japan, while in the capital of Manchukuo is the biggest radio station she had ever seen, Miss Duncan stated. She pointed out that there was the kind of competition that is taking place to dominate the Far East. In Peiping, however, Miss Duncan said, she first listened to Australia's short-wave station. The speaker pointed out that the Australian Broadcasting Commission is anxious to be of service to people in New Zealand, Malaya, China and other Pacific countries. It was because of this that she was making this trip to the Far East on the Commission's behalf.

TEST CRICKET BROADCAST

In Shanghai she tried to listen to the Test Cricket broadcast but interference made it difficult to hear. She felt that ZBW and the Shanghai stations would gladly re-broadcast Australian programmes if the signals came over more clearly.

The speaker said she called on the Director of Broadcast in Nanking and was told that the Chinese Government do not charge for licence but they insisted on registration. She emphasised the fact that broadcasting is one of the strongest influences making for the unification of China. In Canton she saw its people rejoicing over the unification with Nanking.

OPENING NEW FIELD

In conclusion the speaker said, "Broadcasting is opening up a new field for international education. It is a means of giving a true picture of life in each country and should, therefore, be used for the service of the world community and not for its destruction."
